

THEIR'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

SUCCESSFUL AGING IN CENTRAL OHIO

Beginning in 2010,

Ohio's baby boomer generation will start retiring in record numbers, and by 2025, adults age 65 and older will comprise 19.6 percent of Ohio's general population.

Nine out of 10 Ohioans say they want to remain in their own homes and neighborhoods as they age. (AARP Ohio)

To: Central Ohio Leaders

Senior Independence, a premier provider of home and community-based services for older adults, invites you to a FREE half-day retreat.

Join Visionary David Baxter, senior vice president of Age Wave, as he plays the role of "storyteller" exploring key trends emerging from the aging of America. For more than 10 years, Baxter has spearheaded cutting-edge, landmark consumer, market, and industry research, uncovering unique market opportunities created by the growth of the over-50 population.

Age Wave is the nation's foremost thought-leader on population aging and its profound business, social, and cultural implications.

As a provocateur, Baxter will guide a panel of experts in discussing challenges associated with our aging population:

- The age wave's impact on our workforce and community.
- Government's role in making central Ohio age-friendly.
- Key aspects of a "livable community" such as universal design.
- Deliverability and accessibility of health care services for aging adults.

Don't miss this opportunity to be a part of "Conversations that Matter" and draw on the collective intelligence of central Ohio's business leaders, policy makers and industry influencers.
